

Trans*Code

Trans*code aims to help draw attention to transgender issues through a topic focused hackday including participation from community members not currently working in technology. Participants from all skill levels are welcome.

Trans*Code Hackday in Zurich!

Announcing the first Zurich event for Trans*Code – Switzerland’s only hack event series focused solely on drawing attention to transgender issues and opportunities.

What: Trans*Code

Open to trans and non-binary folk, allies, coders, designers and visionaries of all sorts, Trans*Code is a groundbreaking event that aims to help draw attention to transgender issues through a topic-focused hackday. Community members not currently working in technology are also encouraged to participate.

When: Trans*Code

Saturday, 10 December 2016

Where:

Liip Arena,
Limmatstrasse 183,
8005 Zurich

Why:

Following a number of events held elsewhere, we would like to present the same opportunity to the Swiss Trans* community.

Trans*Code founder Naomi Ceder explains: “As technology offers growing opportunities, being sure these opportunities are equally accessible to traditionally marginalised groups grows ever more important.

“Trans*Code participants can come from any background, working together to create prototypes around the themes of transgender issues and access to technology.

“So if you have an idea, can code, can design, want to learn, or want to improve the situation of the trans and non-binary communities through technology, please join us and help make history.”

Registration: via Eventbrite

Website: <http://trans-code.ch>

Sponsors:

Liip – Venue Sponsor

Org Partners – thanks to the following organisations for their support:

- Transgender Network Switzerland

Contact:

Rae Knowler and Arielle Albon – info@trans-code.ch

Social:

Twitter: @trans_code_ch, #trans_code_ch

Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/events/461157460757979/>

Code of Conduct

Because trans and non-binary people already experience unique forms of discrimination, it is important to us that our event be not only safe and harassment free, but a positive and affirming space for everyone involved.

We honor all gender identities, races, sexualities, body types, economic backgrounds, abilities, religious beliefs and overall ways of human being, as we believe that diversity of experiences is key to successful collaborations.

Our full code of conduct can be found here

For updates on future events, please join the Trans*Code Team group.